

Doug Eveleigh RIP

Born 06 December 1933, Doug Eveleigh was an academic at Rutgers University in New Jersey for 45 years. You can read his obituary here.

John FLETCHER (also 1945-53) writes: The late Phil White, Doug and I all played Rugby at school. We were all victims of the transition from the Higher Schools Certificate to GCE 'A' level in 1952, which saw very few people getting enough passes to go on to university, so we were all senior prefects together in a swollen 6th Form from 1952 to 1953, Phil as school rugby captain and head boy. Together we three then went to the University College of the South West (which became Exeter University in 1955), after which we all went our separate ways, Doug moving to Canada in 1959 and then to the USA in 1961. We all caught up again in later life and visited each other's homes. Doug continued working part time and travelling for his many professional interests into his early 80s. As you will see from his obituary he really was a larger than life character. He will be sorely missed. It is a sad feeling to be the last survivor of our trio.
